SCHOOL ENROLLMENT

Virtually a fourth of Ohio's population spends its working day behind a school desk in the 10,518 schools, colleges and universities of the state. Statistics just compiled by the state department of education show that more than 1,500,000 boys and girls from kindergarten to college are enrolled in Ohio's schools.

Nothing short of an army of teachers, professors and administrators are required to educate these youths. 46,554 teachers being required for the state's public day schools, parochial institutions and night schools. With Ohio's estimated population set at 6,710,000 in 1927, 1,503,796 of that number were between the ages of 5 and 17, recognized as school age, and 1,459,711 were enrolled in a public day school, night school or parochial institution.

These figures are of the utmost importance to everyone. They give a very clear index into the character of the people of Ohio. From them it is a simple matter to understand why it is Ohio is such a thriving state—why there are so many successful men and women, so many successful industries, so many savings bank accounts and so many automobiles, home-owners and the like. Where there is a lack of education, and a lack of educational facilities, the people still retain much of their primitiveness.

INDUSTRIAL ACCIDENTS

A decrease in industrial accidents in Ohio, slight as it may be, is reported by the state department of industrial relations. This decrease is shown for the first six months of the current year.

In 1926 there were 553 fatalities for the first half of the year. In 1927 there were 477 fatalities for the corresponding period. In 1928 there were 520 fatalities up to July 1.

The persistency of accident occurrence in Ohio industries challenges the best efforts of employers and employees in bringing about more effective accident prevention work in every plant in the state. Despite every effort that is made to minimize industrial accidents, they continue to happen.

In view of the precautionary measures which have been adopted in industry to guard against accidents it cannot be said that carelessness is entirely responsible for the large total of industrial fatalities. Neither can it be said that the employer is to blame for these accidents any more than the employees are to be held entirely responsible.

Accidents are something which are constantly happening. Despite the most rigid safeguards, despite the constantly alert man or woman, an accident will happen. And it is difficult to fix responsibility. They happen so quickly that observers trained to watch for culpability are at a loss to fix it.

About all that can be done as a further safeguard against accidents or fatalities in industry is to increase the vigilance of the workers, and increase the safeguards which employers throw about them. Couple this with workers trained in accident prevention through foremen schooled in this sort of thing, and the number of accidents ought to be lessened.

What Others Say

COSTA RICA'S QUEER REQUEST
In response to an appeal to re-enter the League of Nations, the government of Costa Rica has set out to obtain, from Geneva, of all places, what would amount to an interpretation of the Monroe doctrine.

Even if in taking this step it was Costa Rica's purpose to make sure that by rejoicing the league she would not incur oblications which might be out of accord with the Monroe doctrine, her scruples could not but strike every one as far-fetched and untimely. With one or two exceptions, the other nations of Latin-America continue to belong to the European league without in the least worrying about Geneva's interpretation of the doctrine and it is not any apprehension of this kind that has caused the one or two exceptions to avoid or sever connections with Geneva.

But if the Costa Rican government imagines that Geneva is the place to go for the last word on the scope and aims of America's traditional policy, it has another guess coming. True the league covenant purports to classify the Monroe doctrine as a "regional understanding" and as such removes it from any possibility of interference by the league. In reality, the Monroe doctrine is not a regional pact in the sense which the framers of the covenant sought to give it. It is purely and simply a fixed policy of the United States in its conduct toward a region in which this country has peculiar and vital interests and as such it has been recognized and respected, not only by the nations of Latin-America, but by all the great powers as well.

Even the somewhat misleading mention of the Monroe doctrine in the league covenant was meant to be an acknowledgment that it lay outside the league's field of jurisdiction or interpretation, and it is not to be supposed that Geneva will now presume to substitute itself for the United States in furnishing definitions of the doctrine to inquirers. This privilege and this duty belong in the first and last instance to authorized spokesmen of American foreign policy. If Costa Rica wishes to know what the Monroe doctrine means to herself and everybody concerned, she has only to recall the many utterances on the subject by American presidents and secretaries of state.—Detroit Free Press.

WELL-KNOWN TRUTHS

If what Josephus Daniels of North Carolina had to say about southern politics when he visited Albany "caused a small cloud to gather over the Smith camp," as our correspondent says, that camp must have been pitched under the silk canopy of hope rather than under the veritable sky of the campaign. For Mr. Daniels said only what has been published many times in the last few weeks and accepted as fact by all political observers: that North Carolina is dry, that upon the comparative wetness of the acceptance speech will depend the amount of shrinkage in the Democratic majority there, that there is unrest in the south, that some of it is dry and some anti-Catholic. He added that he believed North Carolina and the South will be Democratic anyhow.

In former campaigns it used to be the custom for visitors to candidates never to tell the truth. Their obligation, if Democrats, was to claim that Pennsylvania, New York and Utah were already carried; if Republicans, that they were supposed to break the Solid South. This campaign, which has several points of difference from others—most of the differences highly salutary—has also developed some truth-tellers. Notable among the Republicans is War Secretary Davis, who told Mr. Hoover the other day that it would take a lot of work to carry Missouri. Now Mr. Daniels joins him for the Democrats, and Chairman Raskob won his place in the worthy procession by saying that he thought, from a Republican standpoint, Mr. Hoover had made an excellent speech of acceptance. It is almost worth a campaign to have such new experiences.

Any in the Smith camp who clowned up over what Josephus Daniels said must be dwelling amid rose illusions. The wetter the Catholic candidate of the party, the less appeal in the south and west, and the more in the east and north. That has been axiomatic for a year. It is all that Mr. Daniels said. And if there are any clouds in that, they are not to be discerned at Albany alone. It isn't all blue sky over Palo Alto. — New York Times.

LITTLE SORE SPOTS IN BABY'S MOUTH

By Royal S. Copeland, M. D.
United States Senator From New York, Former Commissioner of Health, New York City

I asked a young farmer friend of mine about his baby. "He has the sprue," he replied. This is the name commonly given in the country for sore mouth of babies.

Real sprue is a disease of the tropics and of the Orient. It has inflammation and ulcers of the tongue and mouth lining. In this respect it is not unlike the symptoms of what the doctors call "aphthous sore mouth" or "stomatitis."

The same word is used for the condition known to the medical profession as "thrush." This is simply another form of stomatitis.

The simple type of stomatitis is met in all the age groups. In grown people there may be a single ulcer or a group of them. These are known as cankers.

Aphthous stomatitis is recognized by the tiny swollen spots on the lining of the lips and cheeks and on the edge of the tongue. At first, they are like little blisters, but

The Salem Business college opened its 15th year on Monday with an enrollment of 25, and 15 to follow next week. Mr. Matthews anticipates having over 100 students enrolled before Jan. 1.

After maintaining an average height of about 11,000 feet for 50 miles, the "Sky Pilot" in one of the most successful ascensions in the history of the Aero club of Ohio, landed near Millport, Columbiana county. Miss Ruth Hoewicher, of Goshen, Ind., who has been spending the summer with relatives in Auglaize county, Ohio, arrived here Sunday evening. Her sister, Mrs. R. B. Thompson, was seriously injured Saturday evening.

A reunion of the pupils of the once famous Mt. Hope academy, at Rogers, was held Friday near Sprucevale. There were 230 in attendance.

Business failures in the United States for the week ending Aug. 20 numbered 236, against 153 in the like week of 1907.

Entries for the Columbus balloon race which is to start on Aug. 29, were completed Friday. Six will participate.

Joseph E. Bentley, Clyde Dole and Miss Anna Trotter went to Urichsville Sunday to spend a few days. Miss Ione Dole, who has been spending her vacation there will return with them.

pretty soon they break, leaving small ulcers.

Thrush differs from aphthous sore mouth. Instead of the ulcers, a sort of membrane forms on the lining of the lips and cheeks and also on the roof of the mouth. They are slightly raised above the surface and in color palely white. It is possible to scrape off the membrane which cannot be done in aphthous stomatitis.

All these disturbances of the mouth and tongue are due primarily to uncleanliness or to wrong feeding. They are rare in well developed and usually healthy babies.

On this account, poorly nourished and debilitated children are more liable to attack.

Prevention is better than cure in respect to all human ills. But it is doubly true of what we may call the digestive ailments of children. Nineteenth of the disabilities of babies can be traced to neglect of the simple precautions necessary to proper feeding.

Unclean spoons, unclean feeding bottles, unclean utensils used in the preparation of the feedings, uncleanliness of mother's fingers—some form of neglect is at the bottom of the trouble.

Let me say at once that this is not wilful or knowing neglect. Invariably it is due to lack of knowledge. Mothers are the most wonderful of God's creatures, and

as days grow cooler

The coming of cold weather brings a longing for heavier food, for roasts and puddings and casserole dishes which require long cooking.

But these long cooking processes need not tie you to the kitchen! An electric range with its automatic time and temperature controls will cook your foods perfectly while you are off shopping or visiting.

These two fall dinners are typical of the meals which can be cooked in the oven of an electric range, requiring no attention from the time they are placed in it until they are removed for serving.

state would be permitted to fix its own standard of the alcoholic content of intoxicating beverages, but his speech in formally accepting the presidential nomination marked the first time he ever has declared for a change in the 18th amendment.

In the campaign the governor will take particular pains to point out for the benefit of the south and other dry states that his proposal would preserve for such states the benefit of a national law that would continue to make interstate shipment of liquor a crime.

Could Have Federal Aid

He also will stress the point that these dry states could continue to have federal enforcement of prohibition within their own borders.

Naturally when Smith campaigns in the middle western states he will deal extensively in his speeches with farm relief, but there will be no pussy-footing on his part on prohibition, even in the driest of dry states, his close friends declared today.

Will Back Haugen Plan

He will tell the farmers that he favors government control of crops surpluses and assessing the cost on the unit benefited, which is the principle of the McNary-Haugen bill, but he also will tell them that if elected he will do everything within his power to bring about a change in the prohibition laws.

Announcement today by Jesse H. Jones, Democratic leader of Texas that Gov. Smith's stand on prohibition "should not be offensive to any fairminded prohibitionist" was cheerful news for the nominee.

Hopes To Be Understood

The governor is said to feel that when his stand on the wet-dry question is really understood other advocates of prohibition will feel the same way.

Gov. Smith's views on prohibition were already well known and his program as outlined, while not acceptable to those who disagree with them should not be offensive to any fairminded prohibitionist for the reason that he makes clear that the president is a law enforcer and not a law maker and that he will enforce the law," Jones wrote in his statement.

Fail To Suit Militants

Some of the more militant farm chieftains thought both candidates should have announced more concrete plans to aid the farmer. Others in Washington felt that neither Smith nor Hoover had offered more or less to the farmers than the other. Of course the opinion in most cases was influenced by party affiliations.

As was to be expected, the Democrats as a whole, lauded Smith's speech, while their Republican opponents criticized it sharply.

Aside from commanding Smith's speech, Senator Fess declared the people would "repudiate" him because of his wet attitude.

Other comment follows:

Senator Caraway (D) of Arkansas: "The governor's statement on the subject is good."

GREETERS PLAN GOODWILL BOOST FOR WINDY CITY

Appeal to Hotel Men For Aid In Re-Establishing Chicago's "Rep"

Chicago, Aug. 23.—Voicing an appeal to the 10,000 hotel executives in the United States and Canada who are members of the Hotel Greeters of America to aid in re-establishing Chicago's good name throughout the continent, Clifton L. Corpening, national president of the Greeters, has started a broadcast of "Goodwill for Chicago" messages to the members of the Hotel Greeters, which is the world's largest hotel organization.

"There is no use denying that Chicago is better known for its crime than for its commercial accomplishments, education facilities, and spots of beauty and historic interest," Corpening declared. "Unfortunately, our murders, gang wars, and political troubles have been of so sensational a nature as to dominate the front pages of the American press. In reality, however, statistics show that Chicago is second lowest in proportion of crime to population, in a list of twelve American cities, with a percentage of 9.8, while other and smaller cities rate a percentage as high as 25.4."

Damaging Publicity
"The publicity given Chicago for its unfortunately daring and sensational murders has driven countless dollars of business away from Chicago, and Chicago hotels. We cannot deny but that our losses in conventions, tourists, and visiting shoppers have been of so high a rate that it is vital we do something."

"Our hotel men know that in many large cities the proposed 1933 Chicago World's fair is being looked upon already as a losing venture, mainly because of the unfortunate publicity given the activities of a few criminals operating in Chicago. This is just a single example of the situation that confronts Chicago hotel managers and owners; and from this you can recognize the desperate position they are in and will be glad to help them."

Asks For Good Word
"We can say a good word for Chicago and tell the world the truth about this second largest American city. Here is the truth: Chicago has had less hold-ups, robberies and major crimes of a like nature during the last two years than ever before in its history. The shopping district, the theater district, and places where visitors are apt to go have been almost one hundred per cent free from crimes of a like nature during the last two years than ever before in its history. The crime that the world reads about is isolated in segregated and seldom visited districts of this great city."

Joe Porter, Noted Pioneer Of Plains, Fights Woman's Suits For Half Of Fortune

Howard, Kansas, Aug. 23.—Joe Porter, cattleman, capitalist and pioneer plainsman who was once the captive of the turbulent Indian chief, Sitting Bull, is not worried over the prospect of losing half of his several millions to a woman claiming to be his common law wife.

So casual about the whole situation, he is, that he has not even filed an answer to the petition of Lena Mae Byers who claimed half of his fortune should be hers with the dissolution of the bonds of their common law marriage.

Porter acted pleasantly and unbothered when served with papers of the suit, now pending in the Elk county district court by Sheriff W. P. Brown. The papers were served on him at his ranch near Beaumont.

Legal Battle Waits

But the legal battle has not yet begun. Perhaps that is the reason for the unassuming attitude taken by Porter. It is believed that the opening of the suit will be in the September term of court.

Neither has a statement from the Byers woman been obtainable regarding the suit.

In her petition she claims to have been the common law wife of Porter from September 1915 to 1927. Porter's lawful wife died in November, 1918, a suicide.

Porter is a colorful character in the two countries, Elk and Butler, where he has built up a reputation as a shrewd cattle buyer. He was born as comfortably rich even before the Carter Oil Company developed a pool on one of his farms and made him tremendously wealthy.

He became a financier after the discovery of oil and was vice president of a finance and trust company in Wichita. In Wichita he purchased a home and extended his dealings in capital to Texas real estate and land development.

Life of Plainsman

Porter has lived the rough rigorous life of the plainsman. Perhaps it is this which accounts for his rough dress, his frugal ways of living, and his rough speech. Many are the colloquial tales which surround this man's history, and the history of the Porter ranch near Beaumont, which is called a "shanty."

He has always shunned newspaper men. But one enterprising reporter was able to draw on his heartstrings to obtain a story of his life.

Berlin, Aug. 23.—The first six months of the current year added 12,900 motor vehicles to the number in Berlin, as against an increase of 12,500 for the entire year 1927.

Noteworthy is also the increase in the number of driving licenses issued to women. They numbered 574 in the second quarter of 1928, as against 292 in the same period of 1927. The total, however, still amounts to less than five per cent of all licenses issued in Berlin.

Find Church Floor Of Fifth Century

Jerusalem, Aug. 23.—A well preserved mosaic has been unearthed in the excavations being carried out by the British School of Archaeology at Khan Elahim, six miles to the east of Jerusalem. The site is that of the fifth century monastery of St. Euthymius, one of the few strongholds of Orthodoxy in Palestine during the spate of heresy which followed the council of Chalcedon in 451.

The mosaic so far unearthed covers the floor of the church, built in 479, and which was destroyed either at the time of Saladin in the 12th century, or of the Mamluk Sultan Beybars in the 13th century. The tomb chamber of St. Euthymius has been cleared showing a fine barrel vaulted chamber which was originally used as a chapel and is completely covered with frescoes. Sufficient of these have been recovered to reconstruct the head of the patron saint of the church.

Masons won the city playground baseball championship by taking the third game of the city titular series from the Masons last night at Centennial park by the score of 8 to 3. Errors by the Masonic aggregation again played the prominent part in their third defeat. Myers pitching a stellar brand of ball throughout the game but was given poor support.

Sam Watkins won his second game of the series holding the Masons to five hits, meanwhile getting excellent support. The Masons got the edge on their opponents in scoring in the first two games, scoring two runs, one in the first and another in the second, but were unable to hit Watkins unfortunately in the later innings.

A walk single and errors knotted the score in the third. Mullins going ahead in the fourth via a home run by Schuller with Campbell on base. That would have been enough to win the game, but the willingness of the Mason's fielders to donate runs became prominent in the sixth and eighth when four more runs were scored.

BUTCHER BOY IS LATEST HERO OF PALE HOSE FANS

Grady Adkins, of Little Rock, Ark., Pitching Good Major Ball

Chicago, Aug. 23.—Grady Adkins, the former Little Rock, Ark., butcher boy, is Chicago's newest baseball hero.

The White Sox pitching recruit, long suspected as having as his very own the stuff of which heroes are made, finally carved his niche in the hall of fame when he won a 15-inning contest here against the hard-slugging New York Yankees.

How he might still be a "butcher boy" down in placid Little Rock, had he not discovered when he was 16 years old there was a "lot of fun in pitching ball games, was told by Adkins today.

Began Early

"I used to pitch when I was 16 years old on Sunday afternoon," said the Pale Hose hurler, "and it wasn't long before I looked on this recreation as the high spot in my life as butcher boy."

Adkins continued to be a chore boy in the butcher shop of his home town, playing amateur ball off and on, until 1920.

That year he was hired out for a trial with the Little Rock Travelers in the Southern association. He didn't register, however, and was farmed out to Henrietta, Okla., in the Western association for further development. That season Grady won 20 games for Henrietta and dropped 12.

The next season he continued with Henrietta winning 28 games and losing 7.

Plenty of Rambling

With the bases loaded and two out, outfielder Welsh of the Giants turned his ankle and fell just as he was about to catch Zitzmann's liner. Three runs came in and the Reds got only six hits off Aldridge and Fitzsimmons while the Giants nicked Laue for nine bingles.

After pitching hitless ball for five innings, Jess Petty of Brooklyn was kayed by three successive doubles, made by Douthit, Frisch and Hafey of the Cardinals. Clark stopped the Cards thereafter, however, and a double and a triple by Eressler off Clarence Mitchell aided the Dodgers to gain a 3 to 2 verdict.

This year Hamm first broke into the limelight by hurtling through the ozone further than any white man mentioned in our best histories; then he leaped further than any man regardless of color since the well known Adam family were declared unfit for the highbrow society in the Garden of Eden; then he broke the Olympic record to bring glory to America, the South and Georgia Tech.

His Longest Game

Adkins' 15-inning victory over the Yanks was not especially thrilling to him, as he once pitched an 18-inning contest.

"The longest game I ever pitched was 18 innings," he boasted. "I was in Henrietta at the time and we were playing a team from Springfield, Mo. We won two to one—some game. They got 10 hits off me."

"And here is some kind of a record—when I was with Vicksburg I once pitched 54 innings in six days, winning five games and tying an other. Our team was crippled and I had to pitch pretty often and I worked every position in the club that season except catcher."

Adkins, a curve ball artist, is 31 years old.

HAMM PICKED FOR BACKFIELD JOB BY GEORGIA

Atlanta, Ga., Aug. 23.—When the band starts the tuneful melody known throughout the South as the battle song of Georgia Tech this autumn, the world's champion broad jumper will probably be gracing the backfield. Ed Hamm has been called by Coach Alexander, and when Alex calls Ed jumps.

Hamm, although he has been wanted on the gridiron at Tech, has not been called for duty by Coach Alex first because the boy who pranced around in grid togs at the high school in Lonoke, Ark., had a burning desire to make the Olympic team, and second because the coach knew the danger of Hamm's being injured in football and thus becoming hors de combat for field work.

Holds World Record

With a world's record to his credit, however, and the knowledge that he has brought glory to the South, Tech and himself through catapulting his powerfully built body farther through space than any other persons who has ever wiped the perspiration from an honest brow.

Hamm is one of the fastest men in the South, having often flashed the 100 yards in better than 10 seconds, and in addition is one of the most powerfully built athletes anywhere.

Imagine the embarrassment of a would-be tackler when he lunged at the giant to find himself grasping an armful of air while the Tech Flash stream-lined across the goal line, yards distant.

Welsh Turns Ankle

When the Ramblin' Wreck starts rambling through a field this fall, there'll be plenty of rambling done by all. And it might not be at all unlikely that press reports will tell how Hamm "broke through a right tackle for ten yards and then hurdled 26 feet through the air for a touchdown."

This year Hamm first broke into the limelight by hurtling through the ozone further than any white man mentioned in our best histories; then he leaped further than any man regardless of color since the well known Adam family were declared unfit for the highbrow society in the Garden of Eden; then he broke the Olympic record to bring glory to America, the South and Georgia Tech.

PAINTED POSTS'
Tom Mix and his "wonder horse" Tony, star in "Painted Posts," the feature screen attraction at the Grand the rest of this week, starting tonight.

Mix enacts the role of Sheriff Tom Blake in Painted Posts, a boom town in uprooted Comanche country. His horse takes an interesting and vital part in the story, aiding Mix to break through prison bars when placed in his own jail by an unscrupulous band of bandits preparing to steal a mine payroll.

A stranded group of chorus girls and an Eastern magazine illustrator take leading roles in the picture. Tom plays the hero to the chorus girls on several occasions and wins their friendship, but is unable to gain headway with Natalie Kingston, who is searching for real western types for illustrations to a story.

Philo McCullough, Al St. John, and Fred Gamble with Mix are the leading males of the cast.

The manner in which Mix outwits the bandits is the basis for a thrilling plot in "Painted Posts," which is interwoven with action and a love theme.

"WHEEL OF CHANCE"
The whims of fate provide the theme of "The Wheel of Chance," Richard Barthelmess' new starring vehicle which is at the State tonight.

The story relates the dramatic adventures of twin brothers, separated in childhood by a trick of fate, and their meeting again in 20 years in a dramatic incident. Barthelmess plays the roles of both brothers. One is rehaven, the other black. The one is denied guidance by their parents, the other is more fortunate.

With great realism and understanding the star enacts both roles, bringing to a climax the story in a courtroom, where one brother is on trial for murder and the second is the prosecuting attorney, without either being aware of their relationship.

Lina Basquette is his leading lady. Margaret Livingstone is the "other girl" who enters the lives of both in the turn of fate's wheel. Warner Oland, Bodil Rosing, and Ann Schaeffer are other members of the cast.

Many Foreigners In France Tilling Soil

Paris, Aug. 23.—Measures must be taken to keep Frenchmen down on the farm or most of the soil of France will be tilled by foreigners.

This warning was sounded by M. Marsel Paon, chief of the labor service in the immigration department, in a paper with detailed statistics on the farm labor question, submitted to the Academy of Agriculture.

During the years 1918-26 1,453,000 aliens entered France to take the places in factory and field left by men killed during the war, 600,000 being employed on the farm.

Thrity immigrants, according to M. Paon, have acquired 218,000 acres of productive ground, while a total of 1,017,395 acres yield crops through the work of non-French labor.

One of the latest inventions is a turbine that utilizes the vapor from mercury in place of steam.

Art in Paper Doll Dressing

Amusing little girls is frequently quite a problem, unless we can interest them in home amusements. Living in city apartments, the street is the only outlet and play place unless, outside of the needed out-door exercise, we create the right sort of entertainment indoors.

Most all little girls love paper dolls. Those that we buy come in boxes or envelopes with several dresses and hats. If we buy a small set of cheap wooden blocks we can run a saw across the centers and make a foundation on which to stand the paper dolls upright so they can be moved about in the various games played with them. Then if we get drawing paper and a box of watercolor paints, the children can draw and cut out chairs, beds, tables, and so on, to make quite a houseful of furniture. The house itself can be made of pasteboard—laundry shirt boards are fine for the purpose.

Heads with arms may be bought where scrap-book pictures are on sale. These home-made dolls can be dressed charmingly in sheets of colored glazed papers, the contrasting colors or black making the trimmings. The dresses may be fastened on with little strips cut to fold on the edge, or with bits of softened beeswax so they may be taken off and changed at will.

Crape paper offers dress material and wall-paper scraps and samples also make excellent dress goods. Bits of ribbon and lace are also permissible and may be pleated and glued in place, if done expertly and neatly. It is quite surprising what ingenuity is expressed in doll dress-making and many designers have commenced their development along these lines in this way.

Many mothers find that wee daughters will make the daintiest doll clothes if encouraged to do so with arms may be bought where scrap-book pictures are on sale. Find Site of Town 2,000 Years Old On Banks of Thames

London, Aug. 23.—Remains of the first Romano-British pile village found in England, estimated to be about 2,000 years old, have been uncovered by archaeologists at Brentford, on the banks of the Thames river.

Experts estimate the site was occupied by Bronze Age men as early as 500 B. C.

The discovery has settled a problem which has exercised expert opinion here for fifty years, namely how did the innumerable axe heads, bronze swords, knives and razors get into the river at Brentford? Of the two suggestions, that they were dropped by prehistoric men fording the river or are natural relics from an inhabited site, the latter is now accepted as the true one.

George F. Lawrence, a well-known English archaeologist, is responsible for the discovery. With twenty laborers, he toiled in oozy mud for two weeks, digging trenches and draining off the accumulated silt of centuries.

The remains of the village consists of a small stretch of wicker-work, evidently the floor of a hut. The structure proves that a damp course was no novelty to primitive man 2,000 years ago. A foot of clay, which kept the hut dry was sandwiched between two wicker-work carpets. By the side of the wickerwork were Roman tiles which had evidently come from the roof.

The relics will be preserved in the London museum.
